Dear Lynn:

The Museum of Flight congratulates our tremendous corporate partner Aerojet Rocketdyne Holdings, Inc. on its 100th Anniversary celebration!

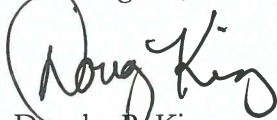

Originally founded as General Tire & Rubber Company in Akron, Ohio, on September 29, 1915, the company has evolved over the past 10 decades to become an aerospace and defense industry leader.

Today, Aerojet Rocketdyne is a passionate corporate citizen with more than 5,000 employees in 10 states around the country. In Washington, the company's Redmond site employs more than 500 employees in high-technology engineering and manufacturing fields.

The Museum of Flight, located in nearby Seattle, WA, has enjoyed a robust partnership with Aerojet Rocketdyne for more than ten years. Most recently, Aerojet Rocketdyne partnered with the Museum to launch "Spaceflight Academy," our most engaging and technologically advanced exhibit yet. The new exhibit, complete with Full Fuselage Trainer and a rocket launch exhibit, opened with great fanfare shortly before the Museum began celebrating its own 50th Anniversary.

A huge congratulations to all Aerojet Rocketdyne employees and stakeholders on your 100th Anniversary! We are honored to celebrate with you.

Warm regards,

Douglas R. King
